

Parent Newsletter

Volume 4, Issue 2; April 1, 2022

What's New!

Well, this newsletter format for one thing! We are switching to an email-based newsletter with links to full articles on our website!

Our website has been updated, too. Check it out!

Have you created your CentralReach Parent Portal account? Check your child's progress and graphs, communicate with your therapy team, and more. Our clinical teams will be using CentralReach for many parent-rated assessments and family-based goals. GO NOW!

Having trouble creating the account? We can help. Call the office at 571-297-4308 or email Tamera at tmcrae@greenboxaba.com

COVID UPDATE: The CDC is still recommending source control (masks) be worn in healthcare settings, as that continues to create the safest environment for both clients and staff. We continue to monitor the guidance from the CDC and will notify all clients and staff if our policy changes.

The National Autism Law Center has an amazing resource page for families. Check it out.

Parent Educational Workshop

Teaching Your Child to Voice Their Choice

Join as Dr. Kaminski and Kathleen Blevins, M.Ed. have a conversation about empowering your child to protect themselves through self-advocacy.

Smooth Move!

by Barbara Kaminski, Ph.D., BCBA-D

We are heading into "PCS season" and we have quite a few families leaving the NoVa area. Even if your family isn't on the move this spring/summer, there is a good chance that your turn is not too far off on the horizon. While this won't be the "first time at the rodeo" for most of our families, moving takes on special challenges when there is a family member with autism. We've compiled some tips and strategies for preparing for and executing the move, as well as settling into your new home...
